Question 4

In the 80s, Manmohan Desai was directing a big-budget, career-defining film when the lead actor suffered from an accident while working on an action sequence. What was a manageable accident soon turned into a life-altering injury, with the actor even pronounced clinically dead for a while. Fortunately he returned, and Desai took recent events into account and did something that redefined superstardom in Bollywood.

ID the movie and what Desai did.

Question 5

This 1970 classic Bollywood movie is one of the only two films in Indian cinema to have two intervals; both movies were directed by the same filmmaker, and this unconventional format contributed to significant financial losses. The film is also known for its uniquely long production time and a plot in which a 'clown' made people laugh despite his own sorrows, making it a standout in Bollywood history. Additionally, on 16th September 2017, a fire in a renowned Mumbai film studio destroyed many props that were originally used in this movie, further adding to its legacy.

ID this movie.

Question 6

‘In Harihar Nagar’ is a 1990 Malayalam movie, which was remade in Hindi as X. The original follows a group of friends who unwittingly gets into the a way of a gangster John Hanoi, who wanted a package of money he lost.
The remake made a change about the package. In the original, the package was just a simple suitcase, however it was changed to X, which makes it look like the gangster was banging people over X.

ID the change.

Question 7

There is a story that Baba _____ Shah, a 17th century sufi saint, once angered his guru, who ordered him to leave and never show his face again. He left as ordered but learned to sing and dance for 8 years before performing for his guru while covering his face to reconcile with him. This story has been creatively incorporated into the song X, where it narratively draws parallels with the remorseful protagonist, who is trying to reconcile with his estranged wife after a tragic incident made them drift apart.

FITB and ID the song.

Question 8

The film Y was initially labeled a failure by numerous critics. Among the criticisms were claims that the film was excessively gory and violent and that the villain's voice was weak. Additionally, critics argued that the central narrative was poorly executed, and the marriage proposal scene, which was intended to be emotional, was instead turned into a comedic moment as the character exposed his friend's flaws.

ID the film Y.

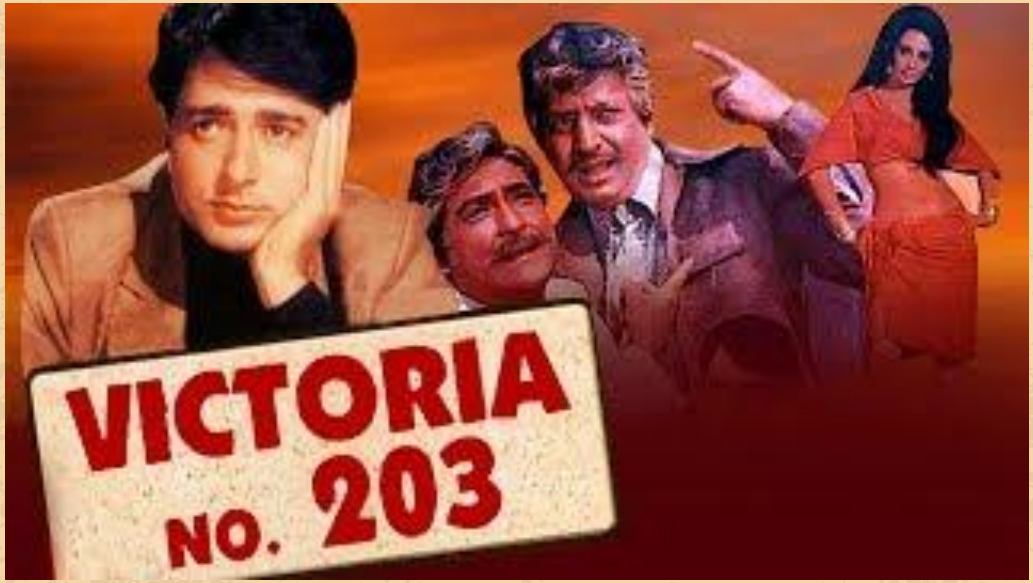

Question 9

This candid filmmaker recently revealed that she was taken aback while watching X in a TV commercial and immediately decided to cast her in a movie. However, what is not known is that X struggled a lot with dialogue delivery and diction due to her background. This seems surprising now, as X has starred in a number of period dramas now. The filmmaker had to take a harsh step then in order to cast X without compromising the quality of the movie.

ID X and what the film-maker did.

Question 10

A very popular movie's last scene was inspired by this scene. Identify the movie.

Question 11

The Wedding Filmer is a popular wedding video company, that is also behind the recent Radhika-Anant Ambani wedding. They were invited as consultants for a wedding sequence held in Udaipur.

The director wanted this company to direct and stage the sequence so that the wedding in the movie looks authentic.

ID the movie and the wedding sequence talked about?

Question 12

Give Funda.

Question 13

Farah Khan, the choreographer of the title track of Dil Bechara, revealed in an interview with The Times of India that she had a specific vision for how the song should be filmed. "For the title track, we rehearsed the entire day and then finished the shooting in just half a day! When I see the song, all I can see is how alive, how happy he looks in it... and this song is always going to be very special for me," Farah Khan shared.

(Continuation in the next slide)

Question 13

Though the performance appears effortless on screen, filming such a sequence is a near-impossible feat in today's era, which demands high precision and perfect timing from everyone involved. Another notable music video shot in this style is Meri Jaan from Gangubai Kathiawadi (2022), which similarly captivated audiences with its continuous flow.

ID what is being talked about here.

Question 14

During X's 1979 Chicago visit, he expressed his profound interest in boxing. The organizers quickly arranged a meeting with Y. They chatted at length about boxing and music although Y had never heard any of X's songs. A number of articles were published during this time, with the titles paying homage to their same first name.

ID X and Y.

Question 15

Some lyrics for a song in the film X were inspired by the famous raag Miyan Malhar, also known as Megh Malhar. In the 16th century, Tansen is believed to have performed the raag for the first time. During an interview, one of the song's singers, Shankar Mahadevan, said that when he sung the same song at a concert in Kerala, it rained heavily for a short span of time. The plot of the film revolves around a setting in which people rely on rain for survival.

Question 2

Released on June 12, 2020, X is a social satire set in present-day Lucknow, revolving around Mirza, a miserly landlord, and Baankey, his sharp-tongued tenant. As they clash over their century-old mansion, a deeper battle unfolds—one that challenges notions of power, ownership, and survival in an evolving world.

What unprecedented move made X a milestone in Bollywood’s cinematic landscape?

Mogambo khush hua!

Answer

First major bollywood movie to release directly on OTT.

Question 3

A song from the film X describes how a kite known as _____ in Punjabi is first trapped within shops, but after it soars, it can flow in any way it wishes, whether left or right. The song's lyrics is written in Punjabi, sung by the Nooran sisters, and composed by AR Rahman. The song illustrates the plot of the story, with the kite serving as a metaphor for the film's main protagonist, who achieves true independence in a completely opposite situation.

Question 6

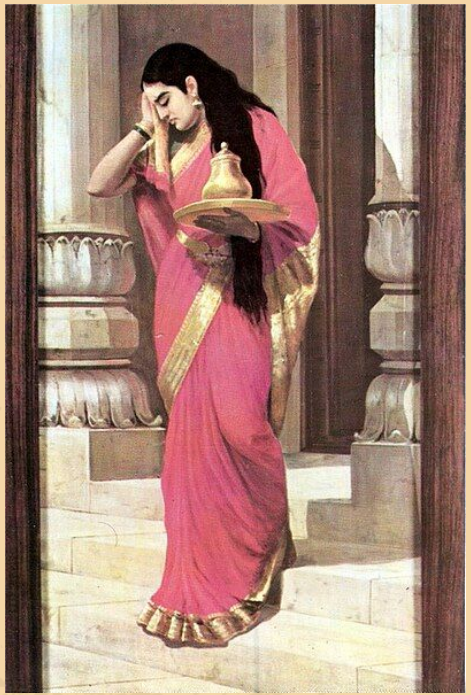

Sairandhari is an Indian film cited as as one of the 21 "most wanted missing Indian treasures" by P K. Nair, the National Film Archive of India founder. It is based on an episode of Mahabharata in which Draupadi took the identity of Sairandhari (servant) to hide her true colours in order to remain safe and hidden from Kauravas. But this movie was first of its kind.

ID the reason.

nahi.. sachi? main nahi manta

Answer

First colour bollywood film

Question 7

Before finding its place in a blockbuster that celebrated innovation and practical learning, a crucial scene involving an unconventional yet life-saving medical procedure was originally conceived for a different film. The scene utilized the Venturi effect—a principle stating that fluid velocity increases while pressure decreases in a constricted passage which has real-world applications in fields like aviation and medicine. However, this intense moment was ultimately repurposed, fitting seamlessly into the new film's narrative and becoming one of its most iconic sequences.

Identify the original film where this scene was first planned and the movie in which it was eventually used.

Abba nahi manenge

Answer

OG - Munna Bhai MBBS

Actual - 3 Idiots

Question 8

X, at one of prestigious moments of his life and of the nation, stated how excited and terrified he was before arriving at the place. During his speech, he referenced a popular phrase '__ __ __ __(4)' from a cult classic of the last century. Through this, X cleverly mentioned that he would still be having his _____(6) even if he wouldn't have won anything, thus dedicating his success to one who came all the way to support him. This also draws parallel to the original scene when the protagonist said the same phrase when he didn't have anything.

ID X. What phrase?

Mujhe ghar jaana hai

Answer

X - AR Rahman

'Mere paas maa hai'
