Literature Quiz

Round 1

Rules

- This round contains 3 acts each bearing 5 scenes.
- Each scene shall impose 5 questions unto thee, one from each of the following genres in the order they are listed: non-fiction, mystery/thriller/horror, romance/comedy, sci-fi and miscellaneous.
- Each question is worth 10 points. There are no negative marks for incorrect answers so feel free to guess.
- Bless'd will be those by the muses who correctly answer all three questions of any genre, awarding a bonus of 10 points per genre.
- Malpractices such as googling answers or discussing with other teams is prohibited.
- Quiz Master's word is final.

Act-I

Scene 1.

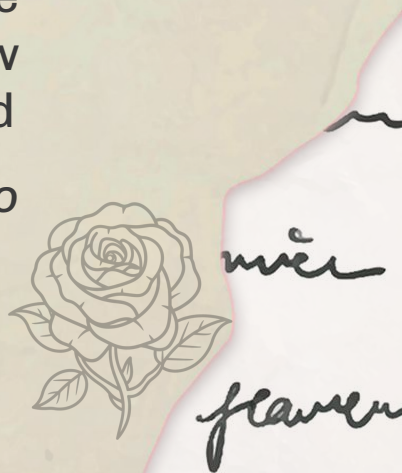

The title of this popular novel is taken from Shakespeare's Julius Caesar. A nobleman says,

> The _ _ _ _ _ (5), dear Brutus, is not in our _ _ _ _ _ (5), but in ourselves that we are underlings.

This line raises the question of whether we control our own fates. For the two protagonists, the title reflects the challenges due to their life-threatening conditions and how they respond. One protagonist writes to the other at the end

> Getting hurt in this world is inevitable, but we do get to choose who we allow to hurt us.

ID the title of this novel.

Scene 2.

The famous book “Murder of Roger Ackroyd” Is known for bringing a completely new trope to the thriller genre which was polarizing at the time. The book, written in first person by a doctor, considered the murderer to be someone completely unexpected. It talks about the murder of a character when Hercule Poirot, the famous detective, takes help of the doctor aforementioned to solve a murder case.

The approach of the book and the trope was initially ill received but now has been replicated in media multiple times.

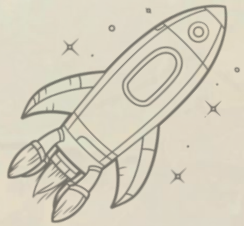

ID the trope.

Scene 3.

In the book _____, the author chose X as a representative for a very important universal quantity. It has become one of the most famous pop culture references. Fans of the book started coming up with outrageous theories on how X could have a property for having been chosen as such an important concept.

The author discarded the endless theories about X being to do with Tibetan monks or binary codes: he said it was just a _____ that sounded funny.

ID X.

Scene 4.

Simone de Beauvoir's The Second _____ is one of the most influential and controversial books, often banned for its bold discussions. In the book, de Beauvoir explores the concept of "others," a group integral to society yet denied equality, autonomy, and recognition throughout history. The author highlights how this group, with rare exceptions like the Spartans, has been systematically marginalized throughout history. The book sparked widespread outrage and fueled a second wave of a movement.

ID the "others" referred to in this work?

Scene 5.

A major Literary award caused much controversy a few years ago as it was awarded to a non-author for the first time. The committee responsible for awarding the prize thought that the person had made significant advancements in poetic expressions, and hence the award was justified.

The work of the awardee is also more popular than ordinary authors and takes inspiration from many old-age poets. He is also known for pioneering rhyming schemes in his field and is known for being one of the best writers in a field where writing is not honoured much.

ID the field the person was a pioneer in.

Act-II

Scene 6.

X is an infamous and controversial novel, which has been adapted into a equally controversial movie. There is a spoof of X, called Y, which infringed copyright laws. This is because, the title of both X and Y are the same, with the exception of a letter. This seemingly small change alters the meaning of the title. Y is actually an empty book with no words and if you delve more into the book, the darker it gets.

ID Y and give funda.

Scene 7.

The Fall of the House of Usher is a gothic horror drama TV Series, released on Netflix on 2023.

The series is loosely based on the short stories written by Edgar Allan Poe. The main antagonist of the series is a demon named Verna who can shapeshift into several forms, notably the ominous _____ (5). The creators of the show named her Verna alluding to Poe's best known work and to _____ (5).

Give Funda about Verna.

Scene 8.

The genre of science fiction, while rooted in fiction, often incorporates a significant amount of scientific accuracy. The book X, released in 2011 presented a positive outcome for Y in the near future.As it was filled with intricate scientific details, Y was over the moon and lent support to X and it's adaptations.

The author, a software engineer, collaborated with open-source peer reviewers to include a lot of technical information, such as chemical reactions to convert _____ into water, the caloric value of _____, and various engineering and logical feats.

Identify the book X and Y, which is a real organisation.

Scene 9.

One of the most popular guide books of all times X was marketed as written by a fictional character created by a company.

The book X was famous because it assumed the reader to be a complete novice in the subject and taught everything from ground up.

The book X’s popularity was majorly among housewives even though nowadays professionals also refer to it.

ID what X is about.

Scene 10.

Charles Dickens's Pickwick is known for bringing a new method of writing novels which is known to inspire modern day soap operas as well.

It also gave birth to _____ (8), one of the most popular ways of literature transmission today.

The method arose due to Dickens writing long books and readers wanting to live the story for multiple weeks living on the suspense.

ID the method and the blank.

Act-III

Scene 11.

The lines,

"I have forgot much, Cynara! _ _ _ _ (4, 4, 3, 4) ,
Flung roses, roses riotously with the throng,
Dancing, to put thy pale, lost lilies out of mind"

are from a famous poem that inspired a timeless love story. The blanks became the title for the famous American novel by then first-time novelist from the 1930s. Set during the American Civil war describing a woman trying to move as fast as possible out of poverty. The novel reflects themes of loss and resilience. The male character, upon leaving, coldly remarks that he no longer cares, while the female protagonist clings to hope, insisting, "After all, tomorrow is another day," underscoring the transient nature of love, dreams, and survival.

ID the novel.

Scene 12.

The famous book X, a surprisingly real portrayal of a murder mystery made headlines in the 2000s.

The book generated controversy due to its realistic portrayal of a real-life murder including details that were not released to the general public.

The name X also mentions how the author imagines the murder would have been done, and the writing approach puts significant suspicion on the author to have committed the crime himself.

It was pulled back several times and re-released and went on to become part of the author's life story as well.

ID X.

Scene 13.

The Left Hand of Darkness is a critically acclaimed science fiction released in 1969. The story explores a planet where the species are primarily latently androgenic, except for once in a month each cycle when they express _____ _____.

A notable aspect of the novel is Le Guin's choice to use a single X for all characters, which sparked one of the first controversies regarding X. A certain critic labeled the novel a flat failure, specifically criticizing Le Guin’s choice of the X. X remains a controversial topic to date.

What are we talking about?

Scene 14.

Nestled in the Kumaon Himalayas is a serene village, once owned by renowned author X, fondly called the "Carpet Sahib" by locals, he is widely known in Uttarakhand for another reason. He was the first writer, after Rudyard Kipling and Munshi Premchand, to feature Nainital in his works.

(contd. on next page.)

Scene 14. Contd.

He affectionately described Y as "large-hearted gentleman with boundless courage...when he is exterminated — as exterminated he will be unless public opinion rallies to his support — India will be the poorer by having lost the finest of her _ _ _ _ _ (5).", noting that Y are an extreme case, writing that "The stress of circumstances is, in nine cases out of ten, wounds, and in the tenth case old age."

Identify the author X and entity Y.

Scene 15.

It is poignant enough to read the _____(6), which the author intended to give to his narcissistic X, but the grief only amplifies after learning that, in the end, the author could not bring himself to deliver this very _____(6).

Families are meant to be a source of consolation, a reminder that there are people who are willing to listen and want you to succeed. The pace of the entire account depicts the anger the author carries with him. It is not just for a moment that X dominates him, but rather the residual effect that leaves the author unable to marry, to live, and to function in society.

ID the blank and X.

Answers

Act-I

Scene 1.

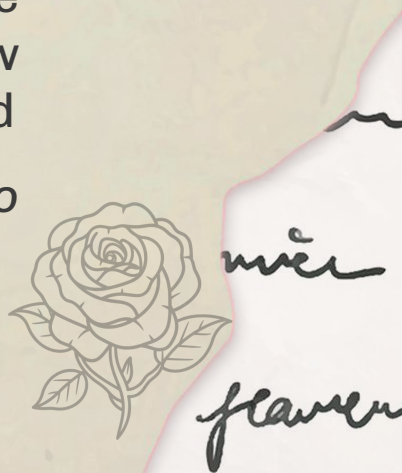

The title of this popular novel is taken from Shakespeare's Julius Caesar. A nobleman says,

> The _ _ _ _ _ (5), dear Brutus, is not in our _ _ _ _ _ (5), but in ourselves that we are underlings.

This line raises the question of whether we control our own fates. For the two protagonists, the title reflects the challenges due to their life-threatening conditions and how they respond. One protagonist writes to the other at the end

> Getting hurt in this world is inevitable, but we do get to choose who we allow to hurt us.

ID the title of this novel.

Answer

The Fault in Our Stars.

Scene 2.

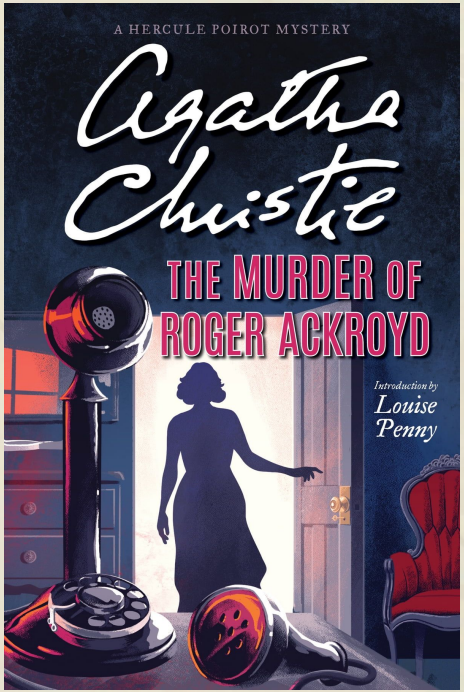

The famous book “Murder of Roger Ackroyd” Is known for bringing a completely new trope to the thriller genre which was polarizing at the time. The book, written in first person by a doctor, considered the murderer to be someone completely unexpected. It talks about the murder of a character when Hercule Poirot, the famous detective, takes help of the doctor aforementioned to solve a murder case.

The approach of the book and the trope was initially ill received but now has been replicated in media multiple times.

ID the trope.

Answer

Trope: Narrator himself was the killer.

Scene 3.

In the book _____, the author chose X as a representative for a very important universal quantity. It has become one of the most famous pop culture references. Fans of the book started coming up with outrageous theories on how X could have a property for having been chosen as such an important concept.

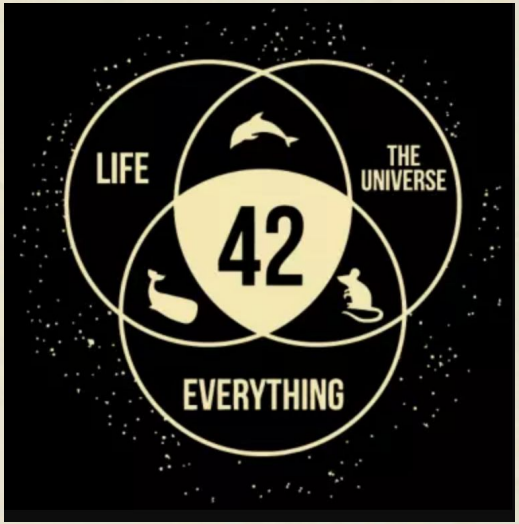

The author discarded the endless theories about X being to do with Tibetan monks or binary codes: he said it was just a _____ that sounded funny.

ID X.

Answer

X→ The number 42.

Scene 4.

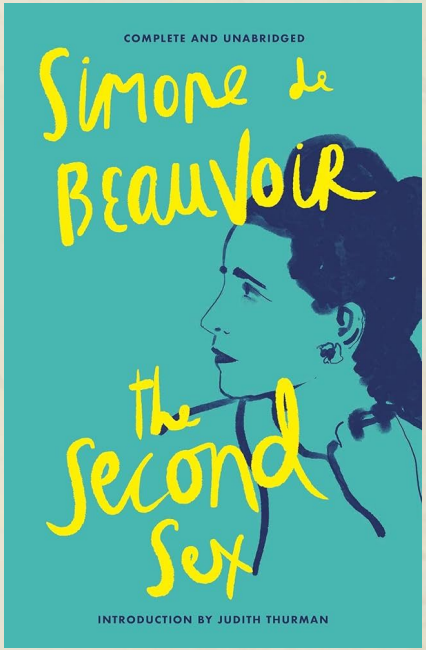

Simone de Beauvoir's The Second _____ is one of the most influential and controversial books, often banned for its bold discussions. In the book, de Beauvoir explores the concept of "others," a group integral to society yet denied equality, autonomy, and recognition throughout history. The author highlights how this group, with rare exceptions like the Spartans, has been systematically marginalized throughout history. The book sparked widespread outrage and fueled a second wave of a movement.

ID the "others" referred to in this work?

Answer

Women.

Scene 5.

A major Literary award caused much controversy as it was awarded to a non-author for the first time. The committee responsible for awarding the prize thought that the person had made significant advancements in poetic expressions, and hence the award was justified.

The work of the awardee is also more popular than ordinary authors and takes inspiration from many old-age poets. He is also known for pioneering rhyming schemes in his field and is known for being one of the best writers in a field where writing is not honoured much.

ID the field the person was a pioneer in.

Answer

Singer (Bob Dylan).

Act-II

Scene 6.

X is an infamous and controversial novel, which has been adapted into a equally controversial movie. There is a spoof of X, called Y, which infringed copyright laws. This is because, the title of both X and Y are the same, with the exception of a letter. This seemingly small change alters the meaning of the title. Y is actually an empty book with no words and if you delve more into the book, the darker it gets.

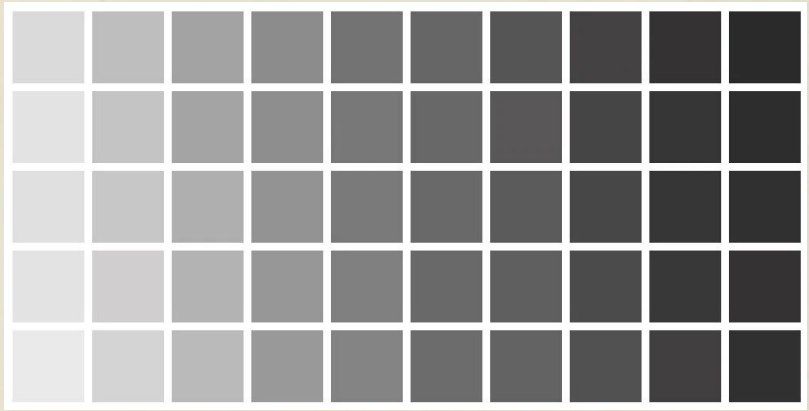

ID Y and give funda.

Answer

Y - 50 Shades Of Gray by S. H. Simove.

The book is literally 50 Shades of the colour Gray.

Scene 7.

The Fall of the House of Usher is a gothic horror drama TV Series, released on Netflix on 2023.

The series is loosely based on the short stories written by Edgar Allan Poe. The main antagonist of the series is a demon named Verna who can shapeshift into several forms, notably the ominous _____ (5). The creators of the show named her Verna alluding to Poe's best known work and to _____ (5).

Give Funda about Verna.

Answer

Verna is an anagram of Raven.

Scene 8.

The genre of science fiction, while rooted in fiction, often incorporates a significant amount of scientific accuracy. The book X, released in 2011 presented a positive outcome for Y in the near future, filled with intricate scientific details, due to that Y was over the moon and lent support to X and it's adaptations.

The author, a software engineer, collaborated with open-source peer reviewers to include a lot of technical information, such as chemical reactions to convert _____ into water, the caloric value of _____, and various engineering and logical feats.

Identify the book X and Y, which is a real organisation.

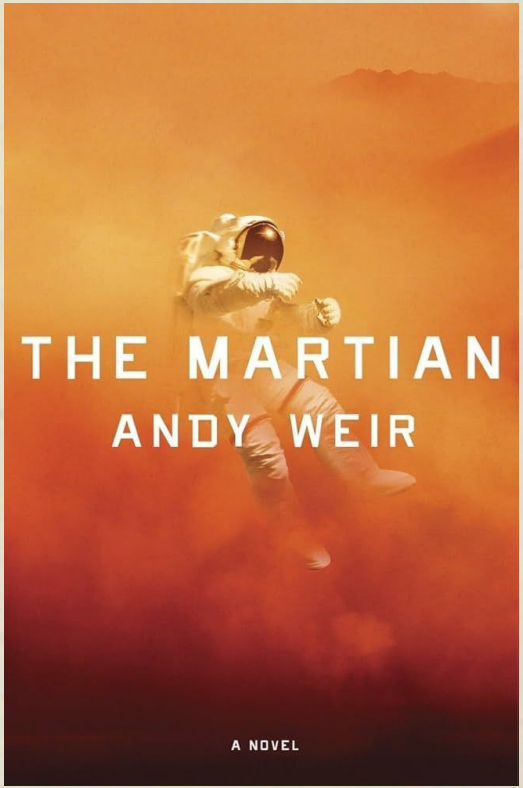

Answer

X→ Martian

Y→ NASA.

Blanks→ Rocket fuel and Potato.

Scene 9.

One of the most popular guide books of all times X was marketed as written by a fictional character created by a company.

The book X was famous because it assumed the reader to be a complete novice in the subject and taught everything from ground up.

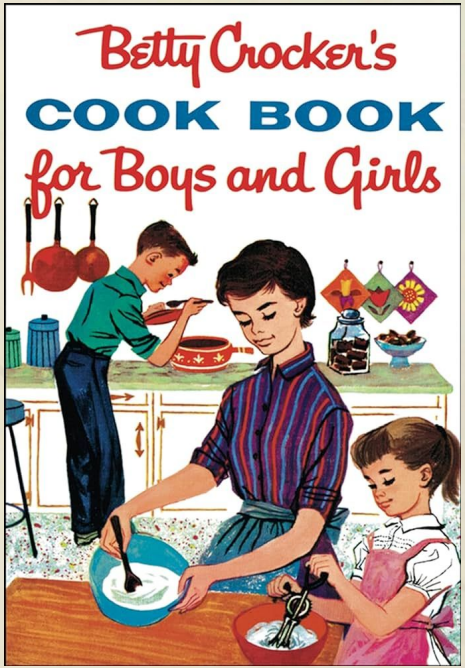

The book X's popularity was majorly among housewives even though nowadays professionals also refer to it.

ID what X is about.

Answer

Cookbooks.

Scene 10.

Charles Dickens's Pickwick is known for bringing a new method of writing novels which is known to inspire modern day soap operas as well.

It also gave birth to _____ (8), one of the most popular ways of literature transmission today.

The method arose due to Dickens writing long books and readers wanting to live the story for multiple weeks living on the suspense.

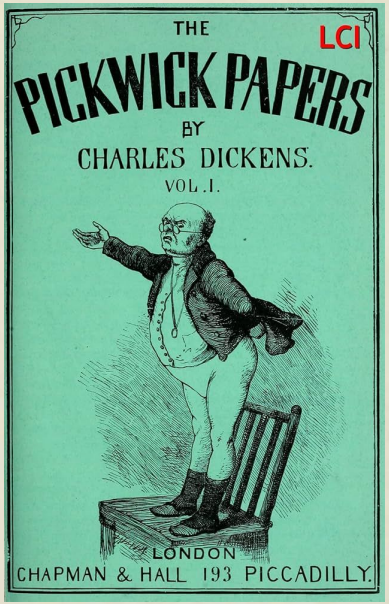

ID the method and the blank.

Answer

Method→ To issue the book into several parts, each part a magazine issue.

Word→ Magazines.

Act-III

Scene 11.

The lines,

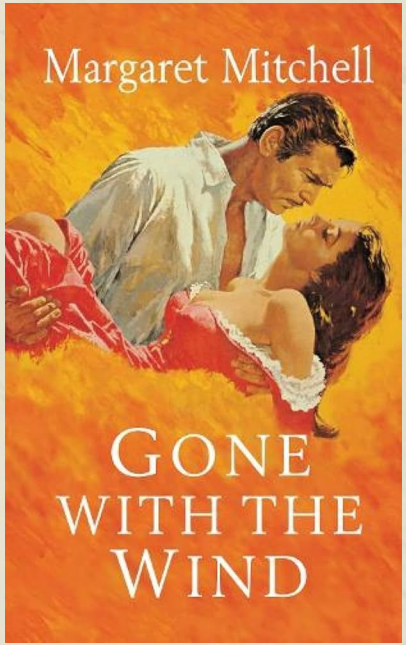

"I have forgot much, Cynara! _ _ _ _ (4, 4, 3, 4) ,
Flung roses, roses riotously with the throng,
Dancing, to put thy pale, lost lilies out of mind"

are from a famous poem that inspired a timeless love story. The blanks became the title for the famous American novel by then first-time novelist from the 1930s. Set during the American Civil war describing a woman trying to move as fast as possible out of poverty. The novel reflects themes of loss and resilience. The male character, upon leaving, coldly remarks that he no longer cares, while the female protagonist clings to hope, insisting, "After all, tomorrow is another day," underscoring the transient nature of love, dreams, and survival.

ID the novel.

Answer

Gone with the Wind.

Scene 12.

The famous book X, a surprisingly real portrayal of a murder mystery made headlines in the 2000s.

The book generated controversy due to its realistic portrayal of a real-life murder including details that were not released to the general public.

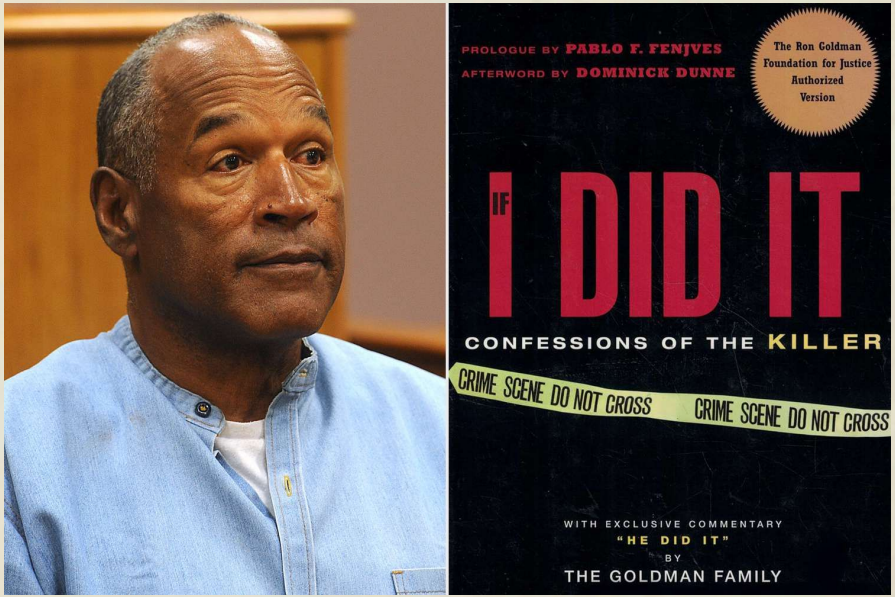

The name X also mentions how the author imagines the murder would have been done, and the writing approach puts significant suspicion on the author to have committed the crime himself.

It was pulled back several times and re-released and went on to become part of the author's life story as well.

ID X.

Answer

If I did it by O. J. Simpson.

Scene 13.

The Left Hand of Darkness is a critically acclaimed science fiction released in 1969. The story explores a planet where the species are primarily latently androgenic, except for once in a month each cycle when they express _____ _____.

A notable aspect of the novel is Le Guin's choice to use a single X for all characters, which sparked one of the first controversies regarding X. A certain critic labeled the novel a flat failure, specifically criticizing Le Guin’s choice of the X. X remains a controversial topic to date.

What are we talking about?

Answer

Pronouns.

Scene 14.

Nestled in the Kumaon Himalayas is a serene village, once owned by renowned author X, fondly called the "Carpet Sahib" by locals, he is widely known in Uttarakhand for another reason. He was the first writer, after Rudyard Kipling and Munshi Premchand, to feature Nainital in his works.

(contd. on next page.)

Scene 14. Contd.

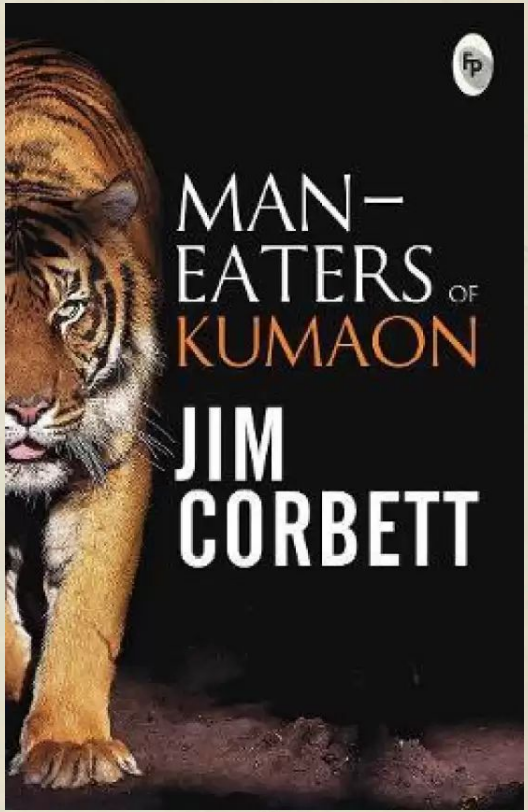

He affectionately described Y as "large-hearted gentleman with boundless courage...when he is exterminated — as exterminated he will be unless public opinion rallies to his support — India will be the poorer by having lost the finest of her _ _ _ _ _ (5).", noting that Y are an extreme case, writing that "The stress of circumstances is, in nine cases out of ten, wounds, and in the tenth case old age."

Identify the author X and entity Y.

Answer

Man eaters of Kumaon by Jim Corbett.
X→ Jim Corbett.
Y→ Man Eaters.

Scene 15.

It is poignant enough to read the _____(6), which the author intended to give to his narcissistic X, but the grief only amplifies after learning that, in the end, the author could not bring himself to deliver this very _____(6).

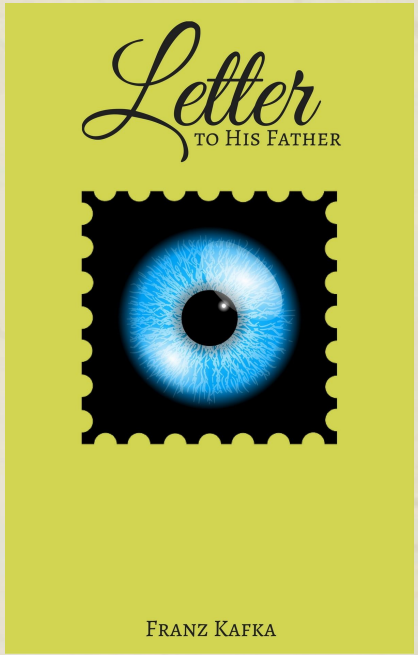

Families are meant to be a source of consolation, a reminder that there are people who are willing to listen and want you to succeed. The pace of the entire account depicts the anger the author carries with him. It is not just for a moment that X dominates him, but rather the residual effect that leaves the author unable to marry, to live, and to function in society.

ID the blank and X.

Answer

Letter to His Father by Franz Kafka.

Round 2

Acrostic Round

Rules

- This is the acrostic round which contains 8 questions.
- In Acrostic, the first letters of each answer when taken in sequence, gives rise to a meaningful word.
- The scoring for each question is +10 for a right answer & 0 for a wrong answer.
- If you get the final word, additional 20 points will be awarded
- Please refrain from using Google or ChatGPT as Big Brother is watching
- Quiz Master's discretion will be final

For eg. if the answers in the sequence are
1. (H)unger Games
2. (O)dyssey
3. Luna (L)ovegood
4. (M)ark Twain
5. (E)xpelliarmus
6. (S)auron

The acrostic word is: HOLMES

Question 1

The very famous novella X was initially published in a journal Epoch under the title “A Confession.” The author chose this title, as the novel was a confession by the lead character, written in first person.

The title of the novella, when properly translated is “Letters from Under the Floorboards” This hints at the inferiority that the character feels when he compares himself with other people, and also tells how the character is in isolation with the society.

ID X which is considered the single most important source of modern dystopian fiction.

Question 2

X is the name of a structural device in poetry. In an X, a line or stanza is repeated both at the beginning and the end of the poem. The repeated part at the end reemphasizes the meaning that the first part was trying to convey. The rest of the poem is enclosed in between these repeated parts. This can be seen in the poem “Is it Possible?” by Sir Thomas Wyatt:

Is it possible
That so high debate,
So sharp, so sore, and of such rate,
Should end so soon and was begun so late?
Is it possible?

X got its name from an object that is used to enclose _____(7).
ID X

Question 3

Genesis, an English Rock Band recorded their eighth studio album “Wind & _____ (9)” in 1976. This album was inspired by a book from victorian era and shares similar themes in between. Some of the last songs from the album, “Unquiet Slumbers for the Sleepers...” and “...In That Quiet Earth.” are named after the last line from the book. The first was named because of its “wind-like evocations;” the second as it has “a bit of a corny mood” like the novel does.

ID the novel.

Question 4

Hans Christian Andersen, the renowned Danish author known for beloved fairy tales such as The Little Mermaid and The Ugly Duckling, also penned a lesser-known, more pessimistic tale titled The X. In this story, a learned man's X severs itself one night from the learned man to visit a mansion on his command and it becomes self-aware and takes on a life of its own. As X witnesses the darker aspects of human nature, it returns to enslave the learned man. This story serves as a metaphor for confronting one's X in order to grow.

ID X.

Question 5

A Hungarian-American politician and a newspaper publisher became a leading national figure in the Democratic Party and later an elected congressman. In the 1890s a fierce competition with his rival paper gave birth to the techniques of yellow journalism, which won over readers with sensationalism, sex, crime and graphic horrors.

From the wealth amassed in journalism, he donated a major sum to the Columbia University, and established the X, the first of which was given in 1917 and was also named after him. 24 of X are given away every year.

ID X, the reason the man in question became famous for.

Question 6

A six-word memoir is a constrained form of writing where only six words are used to convey a deeper meaning.

The famous phrase, “For sale: baby shoes, never worn,” is often misattributed to a celebrated author who won the Nobel Prize in Literature for a story about an aged man’s perseverance.

Despite his literary fame, he was infamous for his battles with alcoholism, misanthropy, and misogyny.

ID the author.

Question 7

X(7) novels are books that are not philosophically challenging, but are just known for their engaging plots. The name X comes from the fact that these novels are mostly bought at certain modern-day places (The place being X) to serve a function to the reader.

The need for X novels can be traced back to the 1800s when readers needed engaging books to accompany them when they _____(6).

ID X.

Question 8

The title of the book is suggestive and mysterious to Japanese readers as X is a Western writer who is well-known by Americans and British, but not in Japan. Another reason for naming it could be the name X, in its Japanese version, could be a combination of ka, meaning “possible” or “good” and fuka, meaning “bad” or “unacceptable,” thus giving the book ambiguity, and also hinting at the theme of the book, which is a journey of self-discovery.

As the theme is about one on the brink of self discovery, second part of the name is apt, as its playing on the verge of boundaries of two things, a vast ocean of ignorance and knowledge, said H.M., the author.

ID the book being talked about.

Answers

Acrostic Round

Question 1

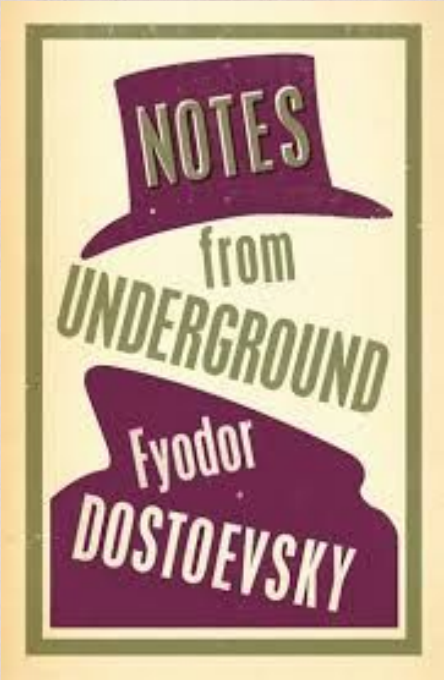

The very famous novella X was initially published in a journal Epoch under the title “A Confession.” The author chose this title, as the novel was a confession by the lead character, written in first person.

The title of the novella, when properly translated is “Letters from Under the Floorboards” This hints at the inferiority that the character feels when he compares himself with other people, and also tells how the character is in isolation with the society.

ID X which is considered the single most important source of modern dystopian fiction.

Answer

X - Notes from Underground

Question 2

X is the name of a structural device in poetry. In an X, a line or stanza is repeated both at the beginning and the end of the poem. The repeated part at the end reemphasizes the meaning that the first part was trying to convey. The rest of the poem is enclosed in between these repeated parts. This can be seen in the poem “Is it Possible?” by Sir Thomas Wyatt:

Is it possible
That so high debate,
So sharp, so sore, and of such rate,
Should end so soon and was begun so late?
Is it possible?

X got its name from an object that is used to enclose _____(7).
ID X

Answer

Envelope

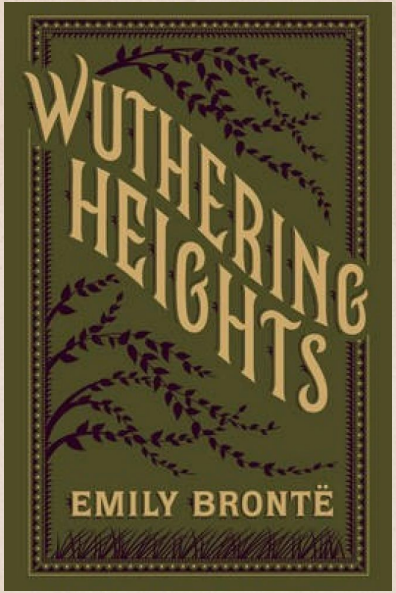

Question 3

Genesis, an English Rock Band recorded their eighth studio album “Wind & _____ (9)” in 1976. This album was inspired by a book from victorian era and shares similar themes in between. Some of the last songs from the album, “Unquiet Slumbers for the Sleepers...” and “...In That Quiet Earth.” are named after the last line from the book. The first was named because of its “wind-like evocations;” the second as it has “a bit of a corny mood” like the novel does.

ID the novel.

Answer

Wuthering Heights

Question 4

Hans Christian Andersen, the renowned Danish author known for beloved fairy tales such as The Little Mermaid and The Ugly Duckling, also penned a lesser-known, more pessimistic tale titled The X. In this story, a learned man's X severs itself one night from the learned man to visit a mansion on his command and it becomes self-aware and takes on a life of its own. As X witnesses the darker aspects of human nature, it returns to enslave the learned man. This story serves as a metaphor for confronting one's X in order to grow.

ID X.

Answer

Shadow

Question 5

A Hungarian-American politician and a newspaper publisher became a leading national figure in the Democratic Party and later an elected congressman. In the 1890s a fierce competition with his rival paper gave birth to the techniques of yellow journalism, which won over readers with sensationalism, sex, crime and graphic horrors.

From the wealth amassed in journalism, he donated a major sum to the Columbia University, and established the X, the first of which was given in 1917 and was also named after him. 24 of X are given away every year.

ID X, the reason the man in question became famous for.

Answer

Pulitzer Prize (established by Joseph Pulitzer)

Question 6

A six-word memoir is a constrained form of writing where only six words are used to convey a deeper meaning.

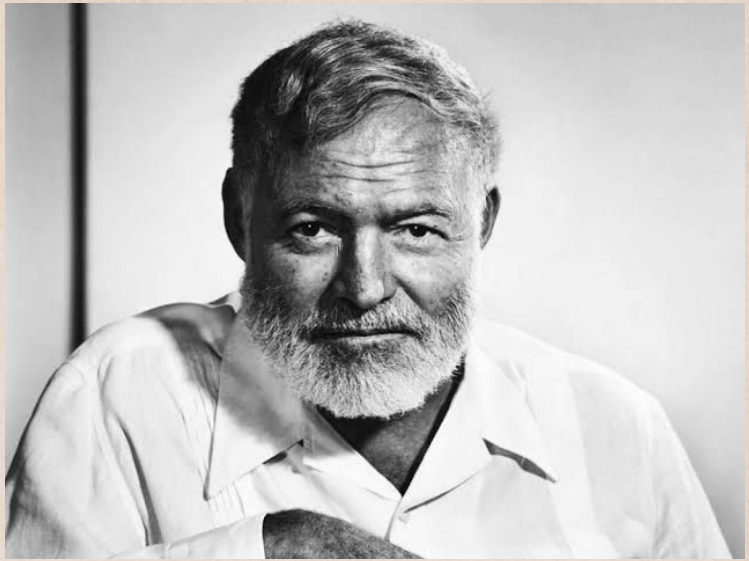

The famous phrase, “For sale: baby shoes, never worn,” is often misattributed to a celebrated author who won the Nobel Prize in Literature for a story about an aged man's perseverance.

Despite his literary fame, he was infamous for his battles with alcoholism, misanthropy, and misogyny.

ID the author.

Answer

Ernest Hemingway

Question 7

X(7) novels are books that are not philosophically challenging, but are just known for their engaging plots. The name X comes from the fact that these novels are mostly bought at certain modern-day places (The place being X) to serve a function to the reader.

The need for X novels can be traced back to the 1800s when readers needed engaging books to accompany them when they _____(6).

ID X.

Answer

Airport

Question 8

The title of the book is suggestive and mysterious to Japanese readers as X is a Western writer who is well-known by Americans and British, but not in Japan. Another reason for naming it could be the name X, in its Japanese version, could be a combination of ka, meaning “possible” or “good” and fuka, meaning “bad” or “unacceptable,” thus giving the book ambiguity, and also hinting at the theme of the book, which is a journey of self-discovery.

As the theme is about one on the brink of self discovery, second part of the name is apt, as its playing on the verge of boundaries of two things, a vast ocean of ignorance and knowledge, said H.M., the author.

ID the book being talked about.

Answer

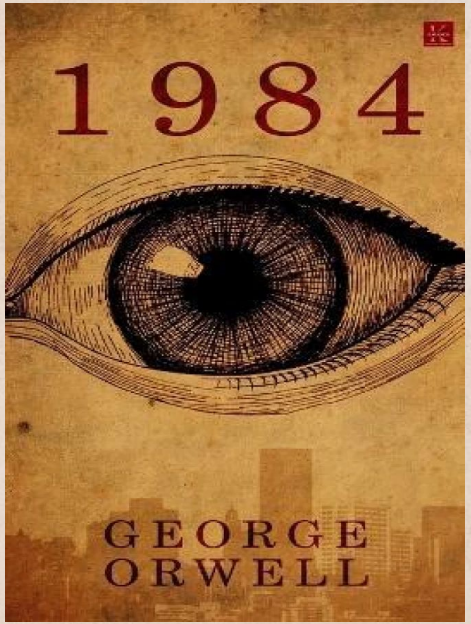

Kafka on the shore

Answer for Bonus Word

Notes from Underground
Envelope
Wuthering Heights
Shadow
Pulitzer Prize (established by Joseph Pulitzer)
Ernest hemingway
Airport
Kafka on the shore

Bonus Word: NEWSPEAK
The Language used by the People of Oceania
In George Orwell's novel 1984

FOLLOW

instagram.com/qcnitw
facebook.com/qcnitw
youtube.com/c/QuizClubNITW

Check out more of our quizzes:

slideshare.com/QuizClubNITW

